Embedding safer recruitment

Safer recruitment is a set of practices to help make sure staff and volunteers are suitable to work with children and young people. It should be a continuing process of improvement for every organisation.

On NSPCC Learning, you'll find information to help your organisation, including guidance on:

- + writing a safer recruitment policy
- + safer recruitment procedures
- + vetting, disclosure and barring checks

Safer recruitment training courses are available to help you embed safeguarding at every stage of the process.

The 4Rs of safeguarding

The 4Rs of safeguarding and child protection provide a handy framework to help you understand your safeguarding responsibilities and keep children and young people safe.

The 4Rs of safeguarding are:

- + Recognising harm and abuse
- + Responding to harm and abuse
- + How to Record/Report concerns
- + When and how to Refer to other agencies

All staff and volunteers should understand these and know what steps they need to take to recognise and respond to concerns.

Introduction to safeguarding and child protection training courses are available to help you understand the 4Rs of safeguarding.
